BEWARE OF RECIPES.

By permission of the manager of the Deseret Farmer, I wish to call the attention of the readers of this paper to an article that appeared in the Saturday, February 13th edition, page 9, entitled "Care for the Harness."

All that was said about the necessity of cleaning and oiling the Harness was very true; but the recipe for making Harness Oil was a very poor one, because several of the ingredients are injurious to leather, such as Lamp Black, Resin Oil and Tar. These all contain acid which will over-heat and destroy leather. The Castor Oil and Fish Oils will both become rancid and gum the harness. The mutton tallow, the beeswax and pure Neatsfoot oil are very good and have been furnished by nature for this purpose.

Therefore, as an experienced harnessmaker of 43 years' experience oiling harnesses and all kinds of leather, I warn the farmers from using such injurious ingredients as Lamp Black, Resin, Tar, etc., but will recommend the Harness and Neatsfoot Oil manufactured by our home factory under the name of "Duck-Back." This oil will penetrate in the leather, the Oil of Mutton Tallow will waterproof; the Beeswax forms a firm and glossy surface.

If any one does not agree with me on this, please write me.

HORSEY TALK.

Mr. Stallion Buyer:—If you want to meet a "Jonah," or be "handed a lemon" shake hands with a "stallion peddler," or the "public auction horseman" that sells "pick-ups" and so-called "home-bred full-bloods," of such inferior size and quality and of "questionable breeding" that they are a detriment to the horse industry, and a "mill stone" hung to the "buyer's neck," as they don't breed the kind he is looking for, as no first-class stallion or noted prize winners are sold by "peddlers" or on the "auction block." Farmers if you want to "go broke" buy these kind of "full-blood" horses. If you want to wear diamonds and have a big white house and a red barn, buy an imported stallion and mares of Frank Iams, the reliable importer that has stood the test for 27 years, where you can buy or order and get a better stallion or pair of mares for the money than you could select yourself. If Iams says so, it's so—that is worth $1000 to you in buying an imported stallion. Dear old dad, 1909 is our "lucky year." Not in 50 years, has there been such "gold mine" opportunities as today, for the breeding of first-class horses, you have barns full of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs, and grain galore, all bringing big prices. You can all "dig down" in your "old sock" and pull out a "roll of mazuma." "Ikey boys," take "my tip" put your "real money" into an imported stallion and four mares of Iams', the "square deal" horseman. They will make you 40 per cent on the investment. The stallion will make you $1,000 annually in service fees. The "panic" had no effect on big draft and coach horses. The demand is larger than the supply and will be for twenty years. Draft, gelding, and coach horses sell readily at $200 to $600 each. Farmers, "get into Iams' band wagon," breed big drafters and coachers. All railroads lead to "Frank Iams' stallion and mare Emporium." He is the largest individual owner, importer and breeder in U. S. Send him an order for a stallion and two mares, you will buy better horses for the money than you would select yourself. He is selling "Peaches and Cream" stallions at "special panic prices," saving buyers $1,000 on a "top notcher." He guarantees to show you the "best bunch" of big, sound, "imported stallions" and "mares" owned by one man in U. S., and horses you will wish to buy, or pay you $500 for your trouble to sell them.

ROTATION OF CROPS ON A FARM.

By E. R. Towle.

There should be some establishment of rotation of crops on every farm where it can be done.

In the West where the grains crops take precedence of hay, this may be a little difficult at first, yet
